1,000 votes already cast

Courier staff report

By the time most voters go to the polls on Tuesday's Election Day, more than 1,000 votes will have been cast in local elections through early voting and mail-in ballots.

The Voter Registration Office had seen 787 walk-ins vote early — at either at its office on the Second Floor of the Jefferson County Courthouse or the two satellite voting location at the Jefferson County Health Department and Hanover Park Building that have been open two days each since pre-voting began on Oct. 8 — by the close of business Thursday.

In addition, of the 298 mail-in ballots requested for the General Election, 271 had already been returned by the close of business Thursday.

Tally those together and 1,058 of the voters eligible to decide the elections in Madison and Hanover have already had their say. By comparison, the most recent election locally, the May 7 primary, saw just 1,845 votes cast overall in Madison and Hanover for a 24.95 percent voter turnout. Of that total, 472 were early walk-in voters and 130 voted by mail-in absentee ballot.

A 'Senior' tradition

Decorated pants, skirts on display

By PEGGY VLEREBOME
Special to the Courier

Back in the day, Indiana teens wore their life stories on their clothes—specifically, decorated corduroy pants for the boys, skirts for the girls. Fabric paints illustrated their interests, their loves, their accomplishments and the icons of the times that would become memories.

The pants and shirts were called senior cords. Tradition demanded that only seniors could wear them. The tradition of corduroy pants being for seniors and only seniors began early in the 20th century at Purdue University and filtered down to high schools, where senior cords were a tradition across the state lasting into the 1970s. Senior cords were possibly unique to Indiana.

Gwen Liter of Canaan was a junior when she started at Madison Consolidated High School after Central High School was closed due to consolidation. Hank Bentz was a senior at Madison. He played basketball and she was a cheerleader. They fell in love. As fate would have it, severe burns when Hank was in the sixth grade had kept him out of school for a year; if not for that, "We would not have met," Gwen said.

This year, the year of their 57th wedding anniversary, Gwen dug out their senior cords from the cedar chest and the Bentzes donated them to the Jefferson County Historical Society's History Center. Society director John Nyberg hopes it is the start of a collection of many former seniors' life stories as told on their clothes. Each one is a personal mural.

The Bentzes' senior cords were put on display immediately at the History Center museum, joining a display of cheerleader uniforms and letter sweaters that was assembled recently and that Nyberg would like to see grow with more donations. Gwen Bentz donated her green and white Central cheerleading uniform and her Madison Consolidated letter sweater to that display. Other memorabilia are in display cases, including a basketball that Hank donated and a yearbook with pictures of senior cords. The

Fire damages old stone house

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

A fire originating from an older wood furnace combined with difficulty in summoning firefighters caused heavy damage to a Rykers Ridge home this week.

Bert Grimes was asleep Monday morning when a smoke detector and popping noises alerted him of the blaze in the 1850-era two-story stone structure on Rykers Ridge Road at about 6:30 a.m. Grimes, who did not have phone service, went to two neighbors' homes before awakening someone to call for help and, by the time firefighters arrived, the blaze had about a 40-minute head start.

"It was a tough fire in an old house," said Madison Township Fire Chief Robert Black. "There were some dead zones in the walls that were hard to get to and at one point we had to emergency evacuate all firefighters because the smoke changed colors indicative of a flashover. We had to get it cooled down before going back in."

Grimes owned the home with a relative, Campbell Higbie, of Lexington. There was no insurance.

Madison Township and Rykers Ridge firefighters responded to the blaze as well as the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office, King's Daughters' EMS, Duke Energy and the Salvation Army.

State suspending Medicaid work requirement after suit

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — Officials are suspending work requirements for low-income residents who receive their health insurance through Medicaid while a federal lawsuit challenging the plan is sorted out. The Indiana Family and Social Services Administration said Thursday it won't be enforcing rules that require those not qualifying for exemptions to report 20 hours a month of work or related activity or face coverage loss after Dec. 31. The move comes after a lawsuit was filed in September against Indiana's plan. Federal courts have blocked the Trump administration from allowing similar work requirements for Arkansas and Kentucky. Attorneys for Medicaid recipients say Congress intended medical care as the Medicaid program's goal, and the Trump administration failed to account for potential coverage losses for thousands of people from work requirements.

Body in Ohio ID'd as Louisville woman

NEW ALBANY — A body found along the Ohio River shoreline has been identified as that a missing Louisvillewoman. The Indiana Department of Natural Resources said the Floyd County Coroner's office identified the body as that of Shanaira Selden, 25. The DNR said Selden's cause of death is still pending additional testing and toxicology results. Selden's body was found Sunday along the river. She had been missing since Oct. 19.

Teen pleads guilty in schoolmate killing

SOUTH BEND — A 17-year-old boy has pleaded guilty in the fatal stabbing of a schoolmate who was pregnant with his child. Aaron Trejo pleaded guilty Wednesday to murder and feticide. A St. Joseph County judge has scheduled his sentencing for Jan. 7. Trejo was charged as an adult in 17-year-old Breana Rouhselang's December 2018 killing. Prosecutors say Trejo told officers he killed Rouhselang because he was angry that she waited so long to tell him she was pregnant that it was too late to get an abortion. Her body was found in a dumpster in their hometown of Mishawaka, near South Bend. Trejo is a Mishawaka High School football player and Rouhselang was a team manager. Relatives say she was six months pregnant.

Distillers set bourbon production record

FRANKFORT — Bourbon production flowed at a record pace last year. The Kentucky Distillers' Association said distilleries filled more than 2.1 million barrels of bourbon in 2018. The state's inventory of aging spirits reached 9.1 million barrels, mostly bourbon. The group said both figures are modern-era records. It's the highest inventory in the 52 years that records have been kept. It's also the only time since 1967 that Kentucky distillers filled more than 2 million barrels. The association said the figures came from Kentucky Department of Revenue data. Despite the continuing surge, the group said trade disputes and tariffs pose an industry threat as bourbon exports have plummeted through August.

University completes acquisition of assets

LOUISVILLE — The University of Louisville said it has completed its acquisition of the financially ailing Jewish Hospital and several other assets of KentuckyOne Health. A statement from the university said the transfer of ownership from KentuckyOne's parent company, CommonSpirit Health, to the university's UofL Health affiliate became effective Friday. All the Louisville-area facilities and 5,500 employees are now part of UofL and UofL Health. State leaders assisted the acquisition by pledging a $50 million loan, half of which would be forgivable if certain conditions are met. Officials say the transaction will benefit the region's health care and the school's medical training and research programs.

Churchill Downs renovation to begin

LOUISVILLE — The home of the Kentucky Derby plans to begin work next month on a $300 million project that will include a hotel, historical racing machines, new stadium seating and a Millionaires Row renovation. Churchill Downs announced the tentative plans Wednesday in a statement saying it would also create 300 new jobs. The track said it is awaiting state approval. The project would include a 156-room hotel in the track's first turn that would offer trackside suites and a gambling floor. The plans would also add about 5,500 new seats at the track.

8-ft. python wrapped around neck of woman found dead in Indiana

OXFORD, Indiana (AP) — A woman found with an 8-foot-long python wrapped around her neck had apparently kept snakes at the residence, which was filled with snakes and outfitted for a collection of the reptiles, police said Thursday. Laura Hurst, 36, was found unresponsive Wednesday night on the floor of a home in the northern Indiana town of Oxford, with the snake wrapped loosely around her neck, said Indiana State Police Sgt. Kim Riley. The person who found the Battle Ground, Indiana, woman removed the python from her neck, but medics were unable to revive her, Riley said. An autopsy is scheduled for Friday. The home contained about 140 snakes, about 20 of which were owned by Hurst, who apparently kept them there and visited the Oxford home about twice weekly, Riley said. The home's owner had renovated it to house a collection of snakes, he said. The reptiles were caged or otherwise secured inside the building, Riley said.

Samantha Morton, Indiana State Director for the Humane Society of the United States released this statement Friday morning:

"Any constricting snake 8-feet or more in length is capable of killing an adult human. These powerful predators are far too dangerous to be kept as pets or in households in residential neighborhoods. The Humane Society of the United States urges the Indiana legislature to pass stronger laws to prevent people from harboring a deadly animal that endangers communities and first responders.

"At least eighteen people have died from large constrictor snake-related incidents in the United States since 1978 — 13 of those since 1990. In 2006 in Indiana a 23-year-old Lanesville man was killed by his 14-foot reticulated python."

The Humane Society of the United States said previous Indiana incidents involving large constrictor snakes include:

• May 17, 2018—Beech Grove: Residents were warned that a 14-foot Burmese python escaped from a neighbor's house five days earlier and had not been found.

• Aug. 8, 2014—Hamilton County: A 5- or 6-foot pet reticulated python who had been missing for at least seven days was found a few blocks from the owner's home.

• Oct. 20, 2013—Mitchell: A giant python abandoned by a tenant at Lakeside Estate Mobile Home park made its away to another mobile home's duct work and was discovered when the home owner was making repairs. According to the park manager, "It's huge. The couple have a child and they were worried about the snake getting into the house." An animal trapper advised them to poke at the snake with a stick until it came out.

• Sept. 4, 2013—Noblesville: Neighbors notified police that a resident's 8-foot red-tailed boa constrictor was loose after they received flyers warning them of the missing snake. The snake disappeared two days earlier from a home located near an elementary school while eating a rabbit outdoors. Police, animal control, and the county sheriff's office were trying to locate the snake.

• April 9, 2013—Muncie: Two landlords found a 4½-foot red-tailed boa constrictor curled up in the bathroom's heating vent near the toilet. The snake had been left behind by the previous tenant. A wildlife rehabber was called in to remove the snake.

Sept. 5, 2012—Union City: A resident contacted police to report a pet python had escaped and was on the loose. The python was found two days later inside the walls of the home.

• July 9, 2012—Santa Claus: Authorities warned residents of the gated community of Christmas Lake Village to be on the lookout for a 13-foot albino python after state wildlife officials received a tip that someone released their unwanted pet snake in the area.

• May 7, 2012—Fort Wayne: A couple was arrested and faced charges of physically and emotionally abusing four children ranging in age from one to eight years old. Among the alleged abuses were threatening to put the children into the cage with their pet boa constrictor and putting their heads inside the cage. Three of the four children were diagnosed with Post Traumatic Stress Disorder.

• Aug. 1, 2011—Greenwood: Police officers responding to a 3 a.m. call about a snake in the road discovered a 5-foot boa constrictor. Animal control officers were called in to capture and remove the snake.

• March 25, 2011—Greenwood: A university student, investigating a noise in her bathroom, discovered a 4-foot baby python hiding in the ceiling vent. A maintenance crew removed the snake. It was determined that the snake had likely belonged to a former tenant who kept snakes in the apartment below.

• Aug. 29, 2010— Lafayette: An 11-foot Burmese python was spotted by fishermen along a creek bank and in the vicinity of two families with young children playing. Authorities responded and shot and killed the snake.

June 27, 2010—Hope: A 1-year-old boy was bitten on the hand by a 4-foot pet boa constrictor who escaped from a cage and was hiding in a dresser drawer. The snake had been on the loose for a few days.

• July 2009: Hope: A 5-foot red-tailed boa constrictor escaped when the owners put the animal in the backyard while they cleaned his tank.

• September 27, 2007—Hendricks County: A 14-foot Burmese python in a Plexiglas case was found by a repairman and sheriff's deputies in an abandoned home.

• Sept. 4, 2006—Lanesville: A 23-year-old man with experience handling reptiles was killed by his 14-foot reticulated python. A medical examiner determined that the death was consistent with asphyxiation caused by compression of the neck and chest.

• Aug. 2006—Hamilton County: Three boaters discovered a dead 19-foot python on the banks of the White River. Authorities speculated that the snake was a pet who had escaped or been discarded.

• July 7, 2004—Terre Haute: A 15-year-old girl was treated for a wound after she was bitten by her neighbor's pet python. The neighbor, who had purchased the snake at a pet shop, admitted that he had also previously been bitten by the snake.

• May 2002—Indianapolis: A 10-year-old boy was attacked by a 10-foot Burmese python brought to a pet store by a customer. The snake bit him on the chest and shoulder, inflicting about 40 puncture wounds, and coiled around his shoulders. The boy's mother filed a lawsuit against the pet shop for the physical pain and mental anguish her son suffered as a result of the incident.

• Nov. 4, 1994—Indianapolis: A 13-foot, 30-pound python bit a 4-year-old boy on the leg and coiled around his chest and legs, cutting off circulation, while the boy was playing in his basement. Five men were unable to pull the snake off the boy, so rescuers chopped off the snake's head with an axe. The boy was treated at a hospital.

basketball is one that Madison Cubs coach Bud Ritter handed out at the end of the season—balls that had been used in practice or games—and told his players to "wear them out" practicing, Hank said.

The Bentzes' faces beamed when they saw their cords for the first time at the museum. They had not seen them since the day they turned them over to Nyberg.

"It was a bittersweet thing to let go of them," Gwen said.

Hank's senior cords pants—peg-legged with the upturned cuffs sewn into place—have a large drawing of MAD magazine's Alfred E. Neuman on the front; on the back of the pants, the back of Neuman's head. There is a picture of a cheerleader and Gwen's name. Down one leg are the first names of Hank's Madison basketball teammates; the Larry on the list is Larry Humes, inductee at multiple Halls of Fame and Indiana's Mr. Basketball in 1962, the year after Hank graduated. Other words and pictures decorate the front and back.

Gwen's skirt, also decorated all over, includes a picture of a basketball player and Hank's name and a picture of cartoon character Huckleberry Hound. When she had taken the skirt out of the cedar chest, it took a while for her to remember why G10 is on her skirt; it was her telephone number in Canaan. Her cord skirt also has pictures of her soon-to-be life: A sparkling diamond ring with the words "A girl's best friend" and a pair of towels on a rack, one labeled "His" and the other "Hers."

Hank graduated in 1961 and she graduated in 1962. Hank had received a basketball scholarship to University of Dubuque in Iowa but got a year's delay so he could wait for his sweetheart to graduate. He worked at Grote that year. Three months after graduation, they got married and moved to Dubuque. They returned to Madison two years later and he worked as the darkroom technician at The Madison Courier, then became the interim sports editor. A couple of years later, they returned to Dubuque when Hank was invited to add sports to the university's news and information service.

They returned to Madison for good about a year and a half later. He was the news and sports director at WORX radio for 10 years. Both of their children, Brad and Nicole, were born in Madison. Brad and his wife, Dottie, and Nicole and her husband, Keith LeGrand, and the Bentzes' five grandchildren and six great-grandchildren all live in southern Indiana.

Senior cords are traced to 1904, when two male Purdue students saw a bolt of corduroy material in the window of a West Lafayette store and liked it. They bought enough to have pants made, and a tradition was born when other seniors had pale yellow cords made.

Artwork and high schoolers came later. Some of the earlier artwork shown in pictures used dark markers or ink. Sometimes pale yellow or wheat-colored corduroy was used, or white as with senior cords in Madison. Later, the artwork used fabric paints and inks.

Senior cords were the social media of their day, and although they are missing now from high school hallways, decorated cords are not gone.

This year singer-songwriter Leon Bridges wore a decorated corduroy suit to the Grammy Awards. His suit, described by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram as having "stuff all over it," was designed by Emily Bode, who has added cords to her fashion line.

But to see authentic senior cords, go to the Jefferson County Historical Society, 615 W. First St. in downtown Madison. The museum is open 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. It is closed Sunday and Monday. Admission is free.

Weather brings break in Calif. fire siege

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Calmer weather allowed crews to increase containment of wildfires after a three-week siege of gusts fanned blazes across California and led utilities to cut power to prevent winds from blowing branches into electric lines and igniting an inferno.

Winds subsided in virtually all parts of the state, though Red Flag warnings for fire danger because of winds and ultra-dry conditions remained in place through Friday evening for some inland areas to the north and west of Los Angeles.

Lingering winds were blamed for churning up a wildfire that erupted Thursday evening and quickly spread from a hilltop near Santa Paula, northwest of Los Angeles.

Authorities in Ventura County ordered evacuations for about 7,500 people in an area that includes roughly 1,800 buildings as the blaze threatened the unincorporated community of Somis.

Hundreds of firefighters raced to attack the blaze, which initially was fanned by moderate winds. It grew in only a few hours early Friday to more than 12 square miles before winds eased.

Firefighters were protecting avocado and citrus orchards and infrastructure including radio communication facilities and high voltage electrical power lines. Dozens of local schools in the area were closed.

For most of October, fires sprang up across the state, forcing residents to flee homes at all hours as flames indiscriminately burned barns, sheds, mobile homes and multimillion-dollar mansions.

Nearly 200,000 Sonoma County residents were allowed to return home even as the 121-square-mile fire that forced them to evacuate continued to burn.

At least 167 homes were destroyed. The number of homes considered threatened was drastically reduced to about 1,600 as containment increased to 67 percent Friday.

Brenda Catelani choked up as she recalled driving back home to Windsor with her husband.

"I think when we left, and especially Sunday, we didn't think we'd be coming back," Catelani said.

Chunks of burnt embers, burned leaves and ash littered the outside of her house.

The fire had come within 500 yards of their house — closer than the wine country fires of 2017 that killed 44 people and destroyed 8,900 homes and other buildings in Sonoma and Napa counties.

Evacuations were also lifted for two small fires, fed by gusts up to 60 mph, that destroyed homes Thursday in the heavily populated inland region east of Los Angeles. One of those blazes, in Jurupa Valley, was caused by dry grasses ignited when a stolen car chased by police tried to escape through fields.

Election Day is Tuesday and I'm asking for your vote.
Strategic infrastructure investment and structural reforms at City Hall will make a real difference in our community.
Community safety must be prioritized and the police department budget increased. The current City Council has failed to address the distinct safety issues faced by downtown residents. This must change.
Our Water Department must modernize and organize its operating policies. We must establish a comprehensive, long-term plan for infrastructure maintenance.
The Historic Board must be reorganized to provide more consistency in decision making and to work with an increased focus on education. Preservation is crucial to our city, but the rights of property owners must be respected.
Investments in our sidewalks, roads, and drainage should be prioritized to the areas that need them most. A neighborhood cannot change for the better if the city is not willing to invest in its infrastructure.

IN MEMORY OF

WANDA JUNE KING

JUNE 4, 1930 ~ OCTOBER 28, 2019

Wanda June King, age 89, of Richmond, Indiana, passed away on Monday (October 28, 2019) at Golden Living Center. She was born on June 4, 1930 to Edison Lee and Mary Ethel Charles Byrd in Webster, Indiana. Wanda was married to the love of her life, Virgil King, for 63 years before his passing in 2014. After her retirement from Natco, she enjoyed cooking, gardening, canning vegetables from their garden and watching and feeding the hummingbirds. Wanda was always in the kitchen cooking and baking and she wouldn't allow family to leave without eating. She loved sports especially when it came to the Indianapolis Pacers and Ball State Cardinals. Wanda loved playing board games with her family and grandchildren whom she loved and cherished. She attended First Baptist Church where she was a member for most of her life and loved her church family. Wanda had lots of friends and loved it when they would come to visit her and especially when her dear friend Dannelle Hayes would come with a milkshake from the Dairy Queen.

Survivors include her children Terry King and Sharon (Terry) Thompson; grandchildren Andy (Natalie) Laird, David Laird, Stephanie Ramsey, Justin King, Zachary King, Hailee King; and great grandchildren Kelsea Hopkins, Luke Laird, Nick Laird, Brittany Laird, Halea Laird, Alec Ramsey and Carter Ramsey; 4 great-great grandchildren. In addition to her parents she is preceded in death by her husband Virgil King, son Jeff King, granddaughter Courtney King, daughter-in-law Carolyn King and 5 brothers.

Special thanks to the Reid Hospital hospice team and Golden Living for taking such great care of her.

Services for Wanda will be held at 1:30 P.M. on Tuesday November 5, 2019 at Riggle – Waltermann Mortuary, 32 S. 11th Street, Richmond, IN. Rev. Phil Hodgkin and Pastor Kevin Hay will officiate. Burial will immediately follow in Abington Cemetery. Friends and family may call from 11:00 A.M. until 1:30 P.M. on Tuesday at the funeral home.

An Open Letter to Fellow Madisonians

As a native-born Hoosier, I feel that we share certain key values - service, commitment, and intellectual curiosity. These qualities have been indispensable in the course of both my public and private sector work. Most recently they have motivated me to seek the office of Madison Clerk-Treasurer in the election on November 5th.

Cities like Madison are the one place in the US that provides the opportunity to have a direct and measurable impact on improving the lives of individuals and families, without the partisan rancor often found in state and national government.

It would be a honor and privilege to serve my community, utilizing the academic, business and public/private experience I acquired, including:

- President/Owner of Windward International and Madison Milton Ferry
- Certified Public Supervisor Program at Ball State's Bowen Center for Public Affairs, focused on operational excellence, best practices and ethics in the delivery of government services.
- President, Hanover College Alumni Association Board of Directors; 2019 Alumni Achievement Award Recipient
- Hanover College Community Leaders Council, whose mission is to further the strategic relationship between the College and the City of Madison.
- Madison Chamber & Industrial Development

Serving as a vigilant, nonpartisan watchdog of the city's finances is the cornerstone responsibility of the Clerk/Treasurer, which includes the following:

- Comprehensive review of all city contracts and spending
- Bringing more good paying jobs to Madison
- Enhance Cybersecurity for the city's data and mandatory training for all city employees to be alert to such threats
- Increase city revenues through tourism and business growth without raising taxes on locals
- Open the proposed Madison/Hanover Scenic Trail linking the city and the campus along the Ohio River
- Establishing a closer working relationship between local educators, city and county government officials

If elected, I will bring transparency, independent thinking, creativity and professionalism to the office.
In closing, please let me express my gratitude for your vote on November 5th.

Respectfully yours,

Phil Mullins, CMP, CPS

EXPERIENCED PROVEN TRUSTED

As Mayor, Julie will focus on:

- ✓ Public safety first — police department improvements
- ✓ Offering new initiatives to address our serious substance abuse problem
- ✓ Attracting good jobs that pay enough to raise a family
- ✓ Increasing our convention and conference business
- ✓ Working with our schools
- ✓ Investing in our infrastructure — including broadband, which is vital for economic growth
- ✓ Funding for a new Senior Citizen Center with adequate facilities for our growing senior population

"I know that if we rise above the partisan politics and work together, we can grow Madison for future generations. My family and I have lived in this beautiful city for generations and I'm committed to working with you to make Madison the best place to live, work and raise a family." — Julie

VOLLEYBALL PLAYER OF THE YEAR

Rebels' Eccles packs a lot of punch in small frame

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

Standing roughly 5 feet, 7 inches tall, Kylie Eccles doesn't cut an intimidating presence on the volleyball court. But what the Southwestern sophomore lacks in height, she more than makes up for in raw athleticism.

Despite fielding a team of mostly sophomores, Southwestern still won 18 matches and the Ohio River Valley Conference this season and Eccles was a big reason why and because of that, she is this year's Madison Courier Volleyball Player of the Year.

Eccles was the Rebels' force at the net. Her 243 kills this year were best in the area and she did it at an impressive 35.1 hitting percentage. Showcasing her all-around ability, she also served at 82 percent (219-for-267) with 49 service aces and recorded 196 digs.

But it was at the net where she made the most impact. Despite routinely facing players taller than her, Eccles was able to use her jumping and quick-strike ability to attack opponents.

"My family has such a high jumping ability so it came with me. But I still have to work for it," Eccles said. "I have to out-jump people who are way taller than me just to hit over them or to block them. It's harder to do since I'm not very tall."

Southwestern coach Chris Johnson knew that his star sophomore had this potential. Despite struggling as a freshman, he could see the kind of attacker that she would eventually become.

"You tend to learn a lot between freshman year and sophomore year and Kylie is a good example of that," Southwestern coach Chris Johnson said. "She definitely took her game to a whole other level."

For Eccles, the biggest thing for her to learn was consistency. Because she was giving away inches to opponents, she had to use her athleticism to its utmost ability.

"I think her biggest improvement from last year to this year is her arm swing. She's always been athletic and is one of the most athletic girls in this school and this whole area, but she's doing a lot better job with her mechanics," Johnson said. "She was getting the ball out in front of her last year and sometimes way behind her. It was really inconsistent. I think she's really gotten to the point where she was attacking the ball pretty much in the same spot, most of the time. I think that allowed her to get consistent, which allowed her to produce more power and turn herself into a legitimate power hitter."

> "You tend to learn a lot between freshman year and sophomore year and Kylie is a good example of that. She definitely took her game to a whole other level."
> Southwestern coach Chris Johnson

Of course Eccles couldn't do it alone. Like a 3-point shooter in basketball, Eccles still needed somebody to get her the ball and in volleyball, that role fell to setter Meaghan Kramer.

Also a sophomore, Kramer did her best to feed Eccles every chance she could and her 535 assists led the area.

"Meaghan is a good setter. Even if the ball was in the middle of the court, she could still get it to me, which was very helpful," Eccles said. "If the ball wasn't to where she could set it to the middle, she could get it to me and even if she was behind the setter's box, she could get it to me most of the time."

While Eccles had a strong sophomore season, she doesn't plan to rest on her laurels. She has already

HANOVER ROUNDUP

Men's, women's soccer dominate Mount St. Joseph

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Hanover dominated Mount St. Joseph in every way, rolling to a 2-0 win in men's soccer Wednesday in Cincinnati.

The Panthers, winners of seven-straight, held a 34-2 advantage in shots, including 19-1 on goal. Hanover also had 11 corner kicks to just two by the Lions and committed only two fouls in the match.

The Panthers scored only twice, but it was more than enough to post the win in the shutout. Ian Waldrop, a junior from Louisville, scored the first goal unassisted in the 29th minute and Ethan Miller, a junior from Breaux Bridge, Louisiana, added the insurance marker in the 73rd minute off an assist by Carlos Schryver, a sophomore from Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Will Bedel, a junior from Walton, Kentucky, needed only one save in goal to secure the shutout win.

Hanover improved to 10-5-1 overall with the win and remains in a three-way tie with Rose-Hulman and Transylvania atop the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference standings. The Panthers close out the regular season at Defiance (Ohio) on Saturday.

Women hammer Mount

Hanover and Mount St. Joseph were nearly even in shots but goalie Amanda Carmosino made nine saves to lead the Panthers to a 3-0 shutout win in women's soccer Wednesday at home.

Hanover held a small 18-16 advantage in overall shots while shots on goal were even at 9-9. The difference in the match was Carmosino's nine saves, three more than counterpart Haylee Woebkenberg.

Autumn Boothby, a sophomore from Mount Orab, Ohio, added a goal in the 66th minute off an assist from Brandi Brock. Brock, a senior from Cincinnati, then closed out the scoring in the 88th minute off an assist from Boothby.

Hanover, now 9-5-2 overall, improves to 6-1-1 in the HCAC, three points behind leader Rose-Hulman, which stands 7-0-1.

The Panthers close out the regular season Saturday at Defiance.

Nationals top Astros to win 1st title

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

HOUSTON — Stephen Strasburg paraded the MVP trophy for delirious fans packed behind the dugout. Max Scherzer tearfully hugged his teammates. Gerardo Parra did the Baby Shark chop, Sean Doolittle flapped snow angels next to the mound.

Almost out of contention in May, champs in October.

Howie Kendrick, Anthony Rendon and the Washington Nationals completed their amazing comeback journey — fittingly with one last late rally on the road.

In Game 7 of the World Series, no less.

Kendrick and Rendon homered in the seventh inning as the Nationals overcame a two-run deficit, rocking the Houston Astros 6-2 Wednesday night to win the first title in franchise history.

With all eyes on Scherzer and his remarkable recovery after a painkilling injection, these Nationals truly embraced their shot in the only Series when the road team won every game.

Even more against the odds: Juan Soto and Washington came from behind to win five elimination games this postseason, an unprecedented feat.

"What a story," said Ryan Zimmerman, the only player who's been a part of every Nationals team.

"The way this game went is the way our whole season went."

Strasburg, new lefty Patrick Corbin and the Nats brought the first World Series championship to the nation's capital since ol' Walter Johnson delivered the crown for the Senators in 1924.

This franchise started out as the Montreal Expos in 1969 when the major leagues expanded beyond the border, putting a team with tricolor caps at jaunty Jarry Park. They moved to D.C. in 2005, ending Washington's three-decade-plus wait for big league baseball after the Senators skipped town to become the Texas Rangers.

But the incredible path these wild-card Nationals with the curly W logo took, well, no one could have imagined.

Because in one topsy-turvy week, they put aside the pain of past playoff failures and upended heavily favored Houston. Quite an ending to a season that began back in February with the Nationals and Astros working out side-by-side at the spring training complex they share in Florida.

"Resilient, relentless bunch of guys," manager Dave Martinez said. "They fought all year long."

Having lost star slugger Bryce Harper in free agency and beset by bullpen woes, Washington plummeted to 19-31 in late May. It got so bad there was talk the Nationals might fire Martinez and trade away Scherzer.

Instead, they stuck with the mantra that sprung up on T-shirts — Stay In The Fight.

"That was our motto," Scherzer said.

And months later they finished it, indeed.

Shut out on one hit by Zack Greinke going into the seventh, they still found a way to win.

"Guess what? We stayed in the fight. We won the fight!" Martinez shouted during the trophy celebration on the field.

"We were down and out. We were 19-31. We didn't quit then, we weren't going to quit now," he said.

Strasburg earned the World Series MVP award with a pair of wins, including Game 6.

"It's almost like we've done it so many times that we have to get punched in the face to kind of wake up," he said.

As pitcher Aníbal Sánchez told Scherzer while hugging him in the middle of the diamond: "We won one. We finally won one."

For the 43,326 revved-up fans at Minute Maid Park, it was a combination of shock and disappointment. So close to seeing José Altuve, Alex Bregman, George Springer and their Astros add to the title they won in Game 7 at Dodger Stadium two years ago, they watched this chance suddenly vanish.

"I've got a group of heartbroken men in there that did everything they could to try to bring a World Series championship to this city. And we fell one win shy," Astros manager AJ Hinch said.

"Let's be honest, there's 28 other teams that would love to have our misery today," he said. "And I just told our team, it's hard to put into words and remember all the good that happened because right now we feel as bad as you can possibly feel," he added.

Washington kept pulling away after taking the lead, with the sensational Soto hitting an RBI single in the eighth and Adam Eaton adding a two-run single in the ninth off rookie José Urquidy.

Acquired from Arizona at the July trade deadline, Greinke was in complete control until Rendon — a Houston prep and college star — hit a solo homer with one out in the seventh that trimmed it to 2-1.

"Just gave us a little bit of hope," Nationals leadoff man Trea Turner said.

When Soto followed with a one-out walk, Hinch decided to make a move. He'd had ace starter Gerrit Cole warming up earlier, but left him in the bullpen.

"I wasn't going to pitch him unless we were going to win the World Series and have a lead," Hinch said. "He was going to close the game in the ninth."

Instead, Hinch signaled for reliable reliever Will Harris.

Kendrick connected on the second pitch, slicing a drive that hit the screen attached to the right field foul pole for a 3-2 lead. Just like that, everything had changed for the team in orange that led the majors with 107 regular-season wins, and the ballpark fell silent.

For Kendrick, another timely blow. At 36, playing on the oldest team in the majors, he was the NL Championship Series MVP against St. Louis after hitting the winning grand slam in the 10th inning of the deciding Game 5 in the Division Series at Dodger Stadium.

Then again, this was nothing new for the Nationals.

Washington rallied in the eighth to beat Milwaukee in the wild-card game and took the last two to beat Los Angeles in the NLDS, setting up a sweep of the Cardinals in the NLCS.

"This is now the most 2019 Nats thing to ever happen," Doolittle said. "Another elimination game, another come-from-behind win."

Far away, a sizable crowd poured into Nationals Park for a watch party. That was the stadium where Houston hammered the Nats for three games last weekend in taking a 3-2 edge, but their luck changed in Texas.

They won the last two against a team that posted the best home record in the majors (60-21) over the last two decades. Houston earned home-field advantage throughout the postseason, but it didn't help in the end as the Astros went a stunning 0-4 in their own ballpark during the Series.

Martinez said Soto, who turned 21 last week, celebrated with his first beer. Meanwhile, the skipper, who had a heart procedure six weeks ago headed back to the clubhouse for a special treat.

"I am," he said, "going to smoke a cigar."

— Madison High School senior cross country runner Clare Wilber has been selected as a 2019 Academic All-State Honorable Mention by the Indiana Coaches of Girls Sports Association.

The criteria considered are SAT, ACT, and GPA as well as the athlete must be a senior and have participated in at least 50 percent of the contests in their varsity sport. Wilber was the only athlete from Madison's Lady Cubs cross country team to qualify for selection this year. Only 75 senior girls in varsity cross country in the state of Indiana were recognized.

"I am very proud of Clare as she was role model not just on the course but in the classroom," Madison coach Josh Wilber said. "This says a lot for the academic program at Madison and for Clare's focus on her studies while competing at a high level with her sport."

— Tryouts for the Indiana Rage Volleyball Club will be held at the Southwestern High School gym on Sunday and Sunday, Nov. 10.

The session for girls ages 10 to 14 will run from 2-3:30 p.m. and ages 15 to 17 will run from 4-5:30 p.m. both days.

This club volleyball opportunity is available to any area volleyball player. For questions regarding tryouts or Indiana Rage, please contact club director Chris Johnson at 812-629-4452 or by email at cjohnson@swjcs.us.

•Eccles

decided not to play basketball this year and will instead run indoor track & field. And while she will not play club volleyball, she still plans on working out on the court.

"I didn't play basketball because I didn't think I had a shot at college but I knew I did for track or volleyball," Eccles said. "I'm doing indoor and I think it will help me a lot, but I'm scared. I don't want to get burned out, but I think it will help me a lot for track season and help me get into shape."

Johnson knows that Eccles has even more room to grow and is excited to see what the future holds.

"Her and I have talked this year about college volleyball and I think she knows that her height puts her at a little bit of a disadvantage," Johnson said. "She does jump well and that's something we want to continue to develop in the offseason, and maybe we can work on a jump program and try to squeeze another inch or two out of her vertical. I still think mechanically with her arm swing and her approach to get her a quicker approach when she gets off the floor when she's jumping. That alone will give her another inch or two."

Southwestern's season ended with a loss to North Decatur in the sectional semifinals, but with five starters back — all sophomores — the future looks bright for the Rebels.

"Most of the starting six are sophomores and we have played together forever, for as long as I could remember," Eccles said. "We just know each other and it's easier."

"That's what I'm most excited about with her and these other sophomores," Johnson said. "There's room for growth for all of them and I think the next couple of years for Southwestern volleyball will be an exciting couple of years to watch."

Alaska wildlife refuge volunteers to visit Madison library

George and Karen Terlinden have had close encounters with brown bears among many other adventures as refuge volunteers and Monday, Nov. 4, they will share those adventures at the Jefferson County Public Library in Madison.

The Terlindenss, volunteers at Becharof National Wildlife Refuge in King Salmon, Alaska, have helped with biological surveys, outreach programs with schools, maintenance work, administrative work and have manned the visitor center at the Alaska facility.

The library program, put together by the Big Oaks Conservation Society, will begin at 6:30 p.m.

The Big Oaks Conservation Society is the non-profit support group of the Big Oaks National Wildlife Refuge.

Society members work closely with refuge staff to enhance public awareness, use and appreciation for the natural and cultural assets unique to the Big Oaks National Wildlife Refuge.

The society maintains and manages Old Timbers Lodge and meetings are the first Monday of each month at 6:30 p.m.

Big Oaks National Wildlife Refuge consists of about 50,000 acres on the former Jefferson Proving Ground in Jennings, Ripley and Jefferson counties.

The refuge is managed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and provides public-use opportunities such as hunting, fishing, wildlife observation and photography, interpretation and environmental education.

The refuge has one of the largest contiguous forest blocks in the southeastern part of Indiana as well as one of the largest grassland complexes in the state, both of which provide wildlife viewing opportunities to refuge visitors.

For more information about the Big Oaks Conservation Society or the Big Oaks National Wildlife Refuge, go to www.fws.gov/refuge/big_oaks/ or call 812-273-0783.

ALLEY OOP

ALL RIGHT, ALLEY, WE'RE RUNNING OUT OF TIME TO SAVE THE PLANET.
WE NEED A WAY TO STOP YOU AND ME FROM EVER INTERACTING WITH THE GIANT TORTOISES. GOT ANY OTHER BIG IDEAS?
WE COULD STOP THE BIG BANG FROM EVER HAPPENING, SO THERE WOULD BE NO GALAPAGOS ISLANDS.
THAT MIGHT BE A LITTLE TOO BIG.
UM, WAS THERE A MEDIUM BANG? WE COULD STOP THAT.

NO MORE GOOFING AROUND, ALLEY. I'VE GOT A PLAN TO SAVE THE TIMELINE.
WE'RE GOING TO GO BACK FIVE MINUTES BEFORE WE ORIGINALLY ARRIVED IN THE GALAPAGOS ISLANDS.
THEN WE'LL STOP THE DOLPHINS FROM...
HAVING KIDS?
WHAT? NO. WHAT IS IT WITH YOU AND STOPPING PEOPLE FROM HAVING KIDS?
PEOPLE AND DOLPHINS!

BRIDGE

DO YOU DEFEND THIS WAY OR THAT?

Alexander Graham Bell said, "Great discoveries and improvements invariably involve the cooperation of many minds."

At the bridge table, accurate defense is sometimes the work of one player, but more often it requires cooperation between both defenders. One of the most important building blocks is the expectation that each partner will play the correct cards.

In this deal, for example, how should the defense proceed after West leads the spade four against South's contract of four hearts?

Note that a pre-emptive opening does not deny a side-suit ace, although making that bid with two aces is debatable. North wondered briefly about responding three no-trump, but worried that he would lose too many spade tricks. Here, though, he might well have survived. Would East have started with his two top spades?

When less-experienced players have ace-king-third or -fourth in the suit that partner leads, they think it makes no difference whether they win the first trick with the king or ace -- but it does. With ace-king-third, you must take the first trick with the king. If you win with the ace, then cash the king, you indicate that you started with that doubleton in the suit. Then it is partner's job to tell you where his entry card lies, so that he can regain the lead either to cash the queen or to give you a ruff.

Here, at trick two, West should drop the spade 10, the unnecessarily high card being a suit-preference signal for diamonds. (With the club ace, he would have played his spade three.)

Vote November 5

Candidates on ballot in Madison and Hanover

MADISON CLERK-TREASURER

Republican Rick Berry is seeking re-election after his first term as clerk-treasurer. He served eight years on the Madison City Council, four years of which as president. Berry has also been a member of the Police Commission, Police Merit Board and Tourism Board. He is a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Friends of Shawe and Pope John program. He graduated from Shawe Memorial High School in 1974 and has a degree in sociology from Franklin College.

Democrat Phil Mullins has been president of the Hanover College Alumni Association Board of Directors and is a member of the Madison Chamber and Economic Development and the Hanover College Community Leaders Council, a committee designed to strengthen the relationship between the college and the City of Madison. Mullins is the president/owner of the Windward International travel management company and the Madison Milton Ferry. Mullins has a bachelor's degree in political science from Hanover College and a master's in the same field from Ball State University.

MADISON CITY COUNCIL DISTRICT 1

Republican Patrick Thevenow has served on the Madison Township Advisory Board since January. He has served on multiple boards outside Madison, including the Contemporary Longrifle Foundation Board of Directors and the Board of Directors of the non-profit Syrian refugee aid organization Special Emergency Response and Assistance. He is self-employed in real estate investment and property management in Madison. Thevenow graduated from Madison Consolidated High School in 2008, has bachelors degrees in history and anthropology from Butler University and a master's degree in Middle Eastern studies from the University of Chicago.

Democrat Jan Vetrhus has been serving the remainder of an interim city council term since August 2018 after Dan Hoffman's death. She is also a member of the council's Public Video Service Board and Traffic Committee. She is on the board of Cornerstone Society and is president of the historic Eleutherian College Board. Vetrhus chaired the city's Bicentennial Committee, served on the LifeSpring Health Systems Board, volunteered with the Jefferson County History Center and has been active with the Healthy Communities Initiative of Jefferson County. She has a bachelor's degree in classical Greek from Concordia Theological Seminary and a master's degree in business administration from the University of North Carolina Chapel Hill. She ran for mayor in 2015.

Independent Derek Hughes wants to appy lessons she learned working at Arvin Sango and the North Vernon Industry Corporation to city government. Hughes graduated from Madison Consolidated High School in 2013 and has bachelor's degrees in political science and psychology from Northern State University in North Dakota.

DISTRICT 2

Republican Amanda Creech has worked with the public in the Jefferson County Assessor's Office for more than 10 years. A certified Level 3 assessor/appraiser, she graduated from Madison Consolidated High School in 2008.

Democrat Brad Wood is director of operations at River Valley Resources. Wood has also worked as a case manager at Community Mental Health Care in Switzerland County, been involved in the Ulster Project and Jefferson County Community Corrections and worked as part of the Indiana Skillful Governor's Coaching Corps focusing on K-12 initiatives. He has a bachelor's degree in international and community development from Indiana Wesleyan University and certifications in alcohol and drug addiction counseling and offender workforce development.

DISTRICT 3

Republican Lucy Datillo has served as president of the Madison Main Street and the Visit Madison board of directors. She also has been part of the Milton-Madison Bridge Stakeholders Committee; Madison Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors; Soup, Stew, Chili and Brew Committee; Ulster Project board of directors, Branding Leadership Team for the city and Madison Chautauqua. Datillo graduated from Shawe Memorial High School.

Democrat Derma Smith has been a councilman since 2016. He has worked with the Jefferson County Industrial Development Corporation as well as the Police Merit Board and Health and Safety Committee of the council. He has served on the Englishton Park Board of Directors, Madison Township Advisory Board and Lide White Boys and Girls Club, of which he is a past president.

DISTRICT 4

Republican Katie Hosier-Rampy is seeking her first full term on city council. Since September 2017, she has been filling the unexpired term of Troy Morgan after his resignation. She now serves on the city's Plan Commission and the 911 Communications Administration Board. She earned a degree in legal administration and a master's in paralegal from Ball State University.

Democrat Thomas Sedam is a self-described "jack of all trades." He drove a cab for 15 years, worked in construction, twice served as president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles in Madison and was a member of the Sons of the American Legion for 24 years. Sedam is retired, but works in the Big Oaks Wildlife Refuge for the National Able Network, an organization that tries to nurture lifelong learning while building bridges between education, training and career readiness, and between workforce and economic development.

DISTRICT 5

Republican Curtis Chatham was for 15 years on the Madison AAU Basketball Board, for two on the Madison Regatta Board and was sports coordinator for the City of Madison Parks Department. He was also on the Indiana AAU Board for 11 years and now is on the Lide White Boys & Girls Club board. He is the Madison branch manager of Industrial Supply Company (formerly VISCO), where he manages a team of 10 people. He was formerly a project administrator for Gaylor Electric in Jeffersonville, where he was responsible for payroll, purchasing, contract administration, contract closure, change orders and accounts receivable.

Democrat Darrell Henderson is an incumbent counciman at-large seeking re-election after two years on city council and the Zoning Appeals Board. Henderson was a member of the Madison City Plan Commission for 24 years and also served on the Board of Public Works. He graduated from Madison Consolidated High School in 1965 and has always lived and worked in Madison.

AT-LARGE

Republican Jim Bartlett has been on both the RiverRoots and Ribberfest Boards and volunteered with Big Brothers, Big Sisters, Nights Before Christmas Candlelight Tour of Homes, Madison Presbyterian Church and as a Boy Scout troop leader. Bartlett has also served as president over Pacesetter Aquatics in Jeffersonville and Southern Indiana AAU swimming. A 1974 Madison High School graduate, Bartlett has worked in the telephone and communication industry for 40 years. He is employed at Unified Technologies in Louisville.

Republican Joshua Wilber has years of experience on the Planning and Historic boards as well as the Madison Area Chamber of Commerce, Jefferson County Community Foundation, Girl's Inc. and United Way. A director of human resources at Grote Undustries, Wilber also coaches cross country and track at Madison Consolidated High School. Wilber has a bachelor's degree in human resources and a master's of business and administration from Ball State University.

Democrat David Alcorn is seeking his second term on City Council, but this time at large instead of District 2, which he has represented since 2016. Alcorn also has served on the city Plan Commission and chaired the New Projects Committee in his time on council. A sixth grade math teacher at Southwestern Junior High, Alcorn has a bachelor's degree in elementary education from Indiana University and a master's in elementary education from Indiana University Southeast.

Democrat Dan Dattillo is an incumbent councilman at-large who has served on a number of local boards and committees, including the city Finance Comittee, Health and Safety Committee, Public Video Service Board and Opioid Pain Management Committee. Datillo also served as acting mayor after Mayor Damon Welch's death Sept. 25 until the Republican Party chose mayoral candidate Bob Courtney to serve the rest of the term. Datillo graduated from Shawe Memorial High School and has bachelor's degrees in business and music from Marion University and master's degrees in secondary education and psychology from Indiana University Southeast. Datillo is a guidance counselor with Southwestern Jefferson County Schools.

HANOVER CLERK-TREASURER

Republican Keith Mefford is the self-employed owner of a construction company, HFP Management, who has spent his life in Jefferson County and graduated from Southwestern High School. He said he wants to "bring new energy" to Hanover town government, improve infrastructure, and update the town's billing system, which only takes cash and checks, he said.

Democrat Donna Pettitt has held the office of clerk-treasurer for more than 20 years in addition to working with the Hanover Parks Department, Salvation Army Board, Hanover Order of the Eastern Star, Jefferson County Commission and Southwestern marching band as a volunteer. Pettitt also has been a troop leader for Cub Scout and Girl Scout packs and served as president of the Pilot Club of Madison. She is a graduate of Southwestern High School and worked in the automotive industry in accounting and bookkeeping.

TOWN BOARD DISTRICT 1 (ALL UNOPPOSED)

Democrat Treva Shelton, an incumbent, is seeking re-election for her third term on Hanover Town Council. Shelton has served on the Jefferson County Animal Shelter Advisory Board, Jefferson County Industrial Development Corporation, Public Video Service Board.

DISTRICT 2

Democrat Kathi Scroggins, an incumbent, is seeking her fourth term on town council. She also has served on the Public Video Service Board and 911 Communications Administration Board.

DISTRICT 3

Democrat Debbie Kroger, served 16 years on town council until she did not seek re-election in 2015. Kroger has served on the 911 Communications Administration Board, Jefferson County Plan Commission and worked as a campus safety officer at Hanover College.

BRIDGE

DO YOU DEFEND THIS WAY OR THAT?

Alexander Graham Bell said, "Great discoveries and improvements invariably involve the cooperation of many minds."

At the bridge table, accurate defense is sometimes the work of one player, but more often it requires cooperation between both defenders. One of the most important building blocks is the expectation that each partner will play the correct cards.

In this deal, for example, how should the defense proceed after West leads the spade four against South's contract of four hearts?

Note that a pre-emptive opening does not deny a side-suit ace, although making that bid with two aces is debatable. North wondered briefly about responding three no-trump, but worried that he would lose too many spade tricks. Here, though, he might well have survived. Would East have started with his two top spades?

When less-experienced players have ace-king-third or -fourth in the suit that partner leads, they think it makes no difference whether they win the first trick with the king or ace -- but it does. With ace-king-third, you must take the first trick with the king. If you win with the ace, then cash the king, you indicate that you started with that doubleton in the suit. Then it is partner's job to tell you where his entry card lies, so that he can regain the lead either to cash the queen or to give you a ruff.

Here, at trick two, West should drop the spade 10, the unnecessarily high card being a suit-preference signal for diamonds. (With the club ace, he would have played his spade three.)

'Stupid is as stupid does'

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: My husband and I went to dinner with his sister and her husband, who live in another state. We are all in our 70s. We have never been "family" close. We have children and grandchildren; they do not. We have pets; they do not. We run in different social circles. They are wealthy; we are comfortable.

While at dinner having casual conversation, my SIL interrupted me and, with a sneer on her face and a nasty tone, said very quietly so our husbands couldn't hear, "You're stupid." It was like a slap in the face. I have not been able to overcome the insult. I have spent the last several years, with professional help, living with depression, anxiety and low self-esteem and had made good progress — until her remark.

I know I'm not stupid. I worked long hours at a challenging legal job for 40-plus years. I raised two children as a single parent; both are very well-adjusted adults doing well in their careers. While working long hours in the legal field with a very demanding boss, I was also caregiver to both my parents and my husband's stepmom. I am my husband's fourth wife and, after getting married, discovered he was verbally abusive which contributed to my low self-esteem. But I took the "bull by the horns" and fixed that problem because I didn't want another divorce. He is no longer verbally abusive, and we are happy.

But the "you're stupid" remark is something I cannot forget. I told my husband when we left the restaurant what she said and told him I would not go with him to meet them again. He called her the next day while I was out, and then she called me (crying) to apologize. But a forced apology cannot erase the words or the damage they caused. I am not interested in a relationship with this SIL. But I do need to get that remark and how I felt — and still feel — about it out of my head. It has brought my depression and anxiety back in full mode. I had to renew my meds because of it, and years of progress have been set back. Why does an adult woman who supposedly has better social skills than I do say something like that? And can it be forgiven and forgotten? Because I'm having a hard time. — Feeling Stupid

Dear Feeling Stupid: Your sister-in-law might as well have been talking to a mirror. Her remark had absolutely nothing to do with you and everything to do with her. A mentally stable person with normal self-esteem does not go around telling people, "You're stupid." She must, deep-down, feel pretty darn bad about herself to say such a thing to another person (let alone a family member). Whatever the reason, if this is the first time she's said such a thing, and since she's apologized, I think you should try to find it in your heart to forgive her. As you showed in your letter, you are an incredibly strong, intelligent woman. I applaud your return to therapy, rather than just resuming medications, as well. Hopefully, your sister-in-law will also seek counseling and sort out whatever would cause her to say such a thing in the first place.
